Research questions

Are longer inspection times better? Or is shorter actually better?

Can we say what good audit behaviour is and what is not good audit behaviour

On a construction site for example, if they are doing daily toolbox talks compared to weekly or monthly, how does this affect their incident rate.

Can we tie business results directly to good auditing behaviour?

What did we learn?

Audits can show specific directions on where improvements can be made

Fewer, shorter more frequent inspections results in lower incidents

Big data can help companies dig into incidents - what's happening, when it's happening and where it's happening

Auditing behaviour doesn't happen in isolation- it's part of the entire culture of the company
